Maracis Mental Health Solutions

streamlining care delivery and management

Formed in 1998 by a group of people who had worked within the NHS mental health services in both software development, clinical positions and in the commercial sector, Maracis Solutions Ltd has a unique 'insiders' perspective on the National Health Service and on the needs of the people who work in it - especially clinicians.

Maracis delivers two mental health solutions to the NHS and independent sector, both of which use an Oracle database, making the database licence itself free to NHS providers:

- Maracis Mental Health EPR (Electronic Patient Record) – a full corporate information system that supports the wide range of activities and requirements across the organisation and its partner agencies, including Commissioning. Maracis Mental Health EPR is the only specialist EPR of its type on the market.
- Maracis e-CPA – designed to support the requirements of the Care Programme Approach (CPA) within organisations that have an existing PAS type system which does not meet CPA requirements. Maracis e-CPA can be easily integrated with existing PAS systems.

and letters). Organisational legal responsibilities are met through the provision of comprehensive support for the Mental Health Act.

Commissioning is an area often neglected by other systems, forcing Trusts to acquire separate products or to use a combination of spreadsheets, and manual processes. Maracis Mental Health EPR's commissioning process is integrated into the clinical process, making reporting on commissioned services a by-product of the everyday use of the system. The commissioning element of the product is currently being changed to support Payment By Results.

Ease of Use – Users access the application's content through a flexible and simple to use portal. Every user can organise and name the application content which they have rights to within the portal, removing the need to find content via drop down menus.

Maracis Mental Health EPR

Maracis Mental Health EPR supports both health and social care, and its functionality spans the provision of services from inpatient to community setting.

Flexibility - Many suppliers of mental health systems assume that 'one size fits all' and that if the application works for adult services then it will also work for specialist services. Maracis Mental Health EPR has had flexibility designed into it from the outset so that each service can use its own assessment tools, forms, outcome measures and standard letters.

MARACIS E-CPA

Designed from the outset to make the life of clinicians as easy as possible, MARACIS e-CPA supports the requirements of the CPA, and similar clinical processes. MARACIS e-CPA uses a small number of standard forms to describe the vast majority of the clinical process, including assessments, care planning, review and outcome measurement. Standard forms can be adapted for each customer. Customers also have the option of building and deploying forms themselves or briefing Maracis on their own unique requirements.

In addition to the forms based data capture MARACIS e-CPA also supports the production of statutory extracts and reports, document and letter production and management, clinical noting and the requirements of the Mental Health Act.

The flexible and simple to use Maracis Portal allows users to access application content. Users can organise and name the application content, removing the need to find content via drop down menus.

Web-based services

Organisations using Maracis Mental Health EPR or MARACIS e-CPA have the option of also using any of Maracis' web based services including:

- MARACIS on the Move – enabling patient information to be accessed on mobile phones and PDA's in real time, allowing staff to record contacts and interventions using the same service.
- Information Sharing Service – allowing organisations to share patient information in a secure and controlled way with partner organisations such as GP's and Social Services.
